Pen name of Patricia Mary Shiels O'Shea Pat O'Shea (22 January 1931 – 3 May 2007), was an award-winning and best-selling children's fiction writer. She was born in Galway and was the youngest of 5 children. Her first novel was the best-selling The Hounds of the Morrigan, which took 13 years to complete. It was finally published in 1985 by Oxford University Press, translated into five languages, and

Over a lifetime, Pat O'Shea mined the deep lore of Ireland to create a lyrical fantasy with rich characters and luminous landscapes. Two children, caught up in a struggle between peculiarly Gaelic forces of good and evil, bring a sense of wonder to the tale without ever being precious or cute. This book has some of the funniest scenes I've ever read and some of the most moving, from Pudden'een Whelan the watchfrog to the bereft Queen Maeve.
